The Assistant General Counsel

Foreign Nationality Groups in the United States

1. Returned herewith is the handbook with the title as in the above subject. You had requested our assistance in clearing the handbook in order to make it available to the Republican National Committee through the Library of Congress.

2. Although I&S has approved the declassification of the handbook from Confidential to Unclassified, this office had certain doubts with respect to the appropriateness of making the handbook freely available. It is pointed out in the foreword that the handbook was prepared originally for strictly internal use. This further stated that the handbook having been printed was offered confidentially and without prejudice as a practical aid to those in other departments of the Government who were concerned with similar problems.

3. The matter was discussed by Mr. Pforzheimer with the Republican National Committee, and their request for the handbook has been withdrawn. Therefore, it would appear that no further action is necessary. A copy of this memorandum will be forwarded for information to [REDACTED] in the CIA Library and to I&S.
